

THE DEPARTED.
The departed!—the departed!—
They visit us in dreams,
And they glide above our memories,
Like shadows over streams;
But where the cheerful lights of home
In constant lustre burn,
The departed—the departed
Can never more return!

The good, the brave, the beautiful!
How dreamless is their sleep,
Where rolls the digger-like music
Of the ever-heaving deep—
Or where the hurrying high-winds
Pale winter's robes have spread
Above the narrow places,
In the cities of the dead!

I look around and feel the awe
Of one who walks alone,
Among the wrecks of former days,
In mournful ruin strown.
I start to hear the stirring sounds
Among the cypress trees;
For the voice of the departed
Is borne upon the breeze!

That solemn voice! it mingles with
Each free and careless strain,
I scarce can think earth's minstrelsy
Will cheer my heart again.
The melody of summer waves,
The thrilling notes of birds,
Can never be so dear to me,
As their remembered words.

I sometimes dream their pleasant smiles
Still on me sweetly fall!
Their tones of love I faintly hear
My name in sudden call;
I know that they are happy,
With the angel plumage on;
But my heart is very desolate,
To think that they are gone.

PROSPECTUS.—The undersigned proposes to publish a Democratic News-paper, under the title of the "THE INDEX," to be edited in Washington City, and printed in Alexandria, District of Columbia, three times a week during the session of Congress, and twice a week the remainder of the year, at five dollars per annum. The first number to be issued about the 1st of September next.

There is a demand for a paper of this description, at the point indicated. The call is creditable to the vigilance which dictates it, and shows a proper appreciation of the exigency of the times. The critical condition in which we find the great and permanent interests of the country, resulting from an extraordinary combination of men and circumstances, all antagonist to the just and abiding principles of the Democratic party, and the injury likely to ensue from a system of measures which there is every reason to believe that combination is about to establish, will, we doubt not, insure the co-operation of the true friends of the Constitution, in all well directed efforts to resist it. So far as the abilities of gentlemen high in public confidence can be employed to effect this object, we have an assurance of their aid, and rely upon the Republicans of the surrounding country for a corresponding evidence of their approbation and support.

We look upon the present as the most important juncture for the re-establishment or final overthrow of the Republican party, which has occurred since the termination of the last century. The celebrated report of Mr. Madison of that day asserted the true creed, and sustained it by an argument which has never been answered, and is unanswerable.

The external party badges of former times need not now be recapitulated. The intrinsic grounds of separation at the first still exist; and the principles which animated and separated the Federal from the Republican party have not remitted in their operation. A fundamental difference of opinion in the Constitution, and as to the powers of the General Government, severs now, as in earlier times, the latitudinarian from his opponent. Parties in their ascendancy have fluctuated alternately; it is a fallacy, therefore, to say that certain points of difference being removed, the Federal party, as such, is extinct. The opposing principles of construction, above referred to, are destined to remain in permanent conflict as long as our Government exists.

A crisis is at hand. The shadows that hang over the face of the future must soon pass away, and then we shall know whether JOHN TYLER of Virginia is politically a friend or foe—whether he will, in the hour of extremity and danger, stand up for the Constitution and his oft-repeated and long-cherished principles, or yield to the influence of those who desire to use, but will never sustain him. "He is our foe, who does his country wrong." If he prove a friend, we must defend him; if a foe, condemn him—as we go for measures, not men; and we estimate and measure by the Democratic standard of Thomas Jefferson.

In conclusion we would direct attention to the facilities and advantages attending this location. Our contiguity to the Capital of the Union, and the residence of Mr. JESSE E. DOW, (one of the Editors) being there, will enable us to give the political news and proceedings of Congress as early as the papers printed in Washington. We are situated in the midst of several Congressional districts of Virginia and Maryland, whose commerce flows hither, and whose people are at present overwhelmed by papers of an opposite character.

Communications for publication, or orders for the papers, will meet with prompt attention by being addressed to the proprietor and publisher, at Alexandria, D. C.

THE PRAIRIE FLOWER:
An Independent Magazine of Literature and Criticism.

Western Literature! Confound the phrase, we hope we shall never hear another word about "Western Literature" as long as we live! What is "western literature" that it is different from eastern or southern or any other sort of literature? Scarcely a newspaper or periodical which we open is without some encouraging and condescending love-pat on the poor shoulder of "western literature," or "western poetry," or some such outrageous nonsense. Now we have the presumption to believe that literature and poetry, wherever they exist, are founded upon the same immutable principle, which principle is a communication of human genius with the immortal beauty pervading all nature—which shapes alike the cloud, the rainbow, the starry skies, the whispering landscape, and clothes them all in its celestial essences—and which develops with its beauty-creating power as well the delicate rose-leaf as the soul's highest aspirations after the infinite and the eternal. In the material as well as the intellectual world, ever thing tends constantly towards perfection. The germ bursts from the rotting seed, in the dark furrow, and springs upward towards the light to bring forth its perfect and beautiful forms—even as the soul of man, struggling with the mists of animal passion and groping in the darkest of its imperfect organization, tends upward and onward till it again mingles with the divine source of beauty whence it sprung.

This is literature; and what miserable nonsense, then, to talk of "western" literature, as if it were a thing apart from the general order of nature—some interesting phenomenon—an intellectual monstrosity—to be patted encouragingly on the back, and to receive, the stunted and reluctant praises of self-appointed "eastern" critics, bestowed very much in the same manner that they would drop a shilling into the hat of an itinerant mendicant, who murders Cinderella's Waltz and the overture to Fra Diavolo on a villainous handorgan! We want no such patronizing encouragement. Does "we-tern" patriotism, or "western" eloquence, or "western" statesmanship, shrink from a comparison with the patriotic and the eloquent of the world? When men speak of Clay, or Prentice, or Marshall, do they qualify their admiration by the remark that "they are pretty well for a new country"? and why should distinctions so odious and so ridiculous be made respecting literature? We are sick of this affectation; and, so far as our humble abilities go, we are determined that it shall be done away with. We are about to commence the publication of an independent magazine of literature and criticism—including within its range every subject of interest in belles-lettres, the fine arts and general literature. We mean to show to the incredulous world that the unnoticed PRAIRIE FLOWER, which "wastes its sweetness on the desert air," glows with as divine a beauty, and breathes as pure a fragrance, as the gayest exotic that flaunts in the parterres of metropolitan fashion. We ask no allowance to be made—no indulgences to be granted—our modest bouquet, because it chances to be gathered from the pathless prairie, within the shadow of the Indian's wig-wam or the rude hut of the ruder pioneer. We wish our work to be judged strictly, severely—without prejudice or favor; and if the PRAIRIE FLOWER, dripping with fresh and odorous dews, finds welcome, well—if it be thrown aside, to mingle unnoticed with the rubbish which strews the earth, it is also well. The only favor we ask for it is that no favor, beyond its strict deserts, shall be extended to it.

The first number of the PRAIRIE FLOWER will be issued on the first of November next—after that, it will appear monthly. The form chosen for the work is similar to the other monthly magazines—a large octavo, each number containing from 48 to 64 pages.

The price of the Prairie Flower is $5 a year. Single numbers can always be procured, at 50 cents each.

Letters relating to the work must be addressed, post-paid, to "Publishers of the Prairie Flower, St. Louis, Mo."

Editors copying this advertisement will confer an especial favor, and will of course be entitled to an exchange.

A NEW VOLUME,
IN SPLENDID STYLE.

JULY, 1841.
GRAHAM'S LADY'S & GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE.

THE great increase in the subscription list of this highly popular Magazine (the edition having more than double in less than six months) induces the proprietor to commence a new volume with the July number. It will be issued in the most attractive style, with the first of a new series of Rich Original Engravings, got up in a manner that shall surpass any used in any other American Magazine. In addition to the fact that we employ the talent of the very best American artists in the engraving of the plates for this work, it must be remembered, that most of the subjects selected are Original American pictures, which have never been before engraved, and are consequently, the newest that can be brought before Highly Colored fashions.

It must be remembered, that the Fashion Plates of this Magazine, are the best in coloring and design that can be found in any work published in this country or in Europe. They are engraved and colored for this Magazine, by the best artists that the country can produce, and are drawn always from the latest designs from Paris and London, and consequently may always be relied upon as the prevailing style in the United States for the month in which they are issued. We pay more for coloring than any other publication, and always have the best.

THE CONTRIBUTORS.—In addition to the unusual fine array of contributors, which the Magazine has thus far boasted, arrangements have been made with a number more of the best writers of the day, so that space and variety may be looked for in the literary department of the new volume.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.—This interesting feature of the Magazine shall still be preserved as important to young sportsmen, and in fact to all young or old, who delight in the sports of the rod and gun. Articles in this department, shall be from acknowledged pens, and of the very best authority.

The volume will be opened with a new and beautiful type, cast expressly for the work, the mechanical execution shall be of surpassing neatness, and the printing shall be upon the finest white paper.

NEW AND POPULAR MUSIC.—The choicest pieces of new and popular music for the Piano Forte and Guitar shall be selected for its pages, and two or more pages shall appear regularly each month. In this way subscribers in remote country towns, can always have the latest music at low rates, almost as soon as it is published.

TERMS CASH.—The terms are $3 for a single subscription, and in no case will the price be abated, or two comes for $5, free of postage and discount, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.—NO SUBSCRIBER RECEIVED IN ANY CASE WITHOUT THE MONEY. This rule is imperative and will not be departed from.

Address, post paid,
